

It's Destinée

Choose your perfect proposal with Cartier

Paris in the spring. Gardens are blooming with colour and infused with the heady perfume of blossoms and foliage. A lone figure explores the grounds, weaving among the delicately laid tables to find the place setting of a not-so forgotten love. A prolonged separation between two ex-lovers has come to an end at a wedding reception in Destinée, the fourth instalment of Cartier's bridal film series True Love has a Colour and a Name. Actor Oliver Jackson-Cohen realises that the one who got away has not, in fact, gone forever. Michelle Chen, his better half, is as enamoured with him as ever before and their love is reignited with this realisation. This is how director Luca Guadagnino shows that all love stories are predetermined, and that not even the passing of years and the diverging of lives can steer lovers off-course.

This Cartier love story ends with an unexpected proposal between the two lovebirds, featuring the new Cartier Destinée engagement ring, inspired by the timeless Solitaire 1895. As part of the Set for You collection by Cartier, the ring can be made to measure with a choice of brilliant-cut stones ranging from 0.50 to 2.99 carats and elevated with a four-claw setting that allows the gem to capture and refract light. A delicate micro-pavé setting completes the perfect proposal piece.

Who can say no to Cartier? Chen accepts and was all too happy to show off the spectacular Cartier Destinée at the jeweller's exclusive launch party recently held at the Four Seasons Harbour View Ballroom, which was transformed to emulate the Parisian garden. Guests enjoyed high tea and a musical performance by Alex Lam in celebration of this lovely engagement. While the ending to Cartier Destinée's love story has already been written, with the extensive Set for You by Cartier, your tale is still waiting to be told...

ALL THE MATERIAL IN THIS FEATURE WAS SUPPLIED BY CARTIER HONG KONG

1895
Autumn in Central Park, New York. A slight breeze ruffles the changing leaves overhead, setting a few free to drift down onto the path below. A figure is walking briskly, almost at a jog to avoid being late for the rendezvous. There she is, in the distance, and he hesitantly fingers the small red box with gold trim. Within is the classic Solitaire 1895 platinum, featuring a brilliant-cut central stone, available from 0.18 to 2.99 carats. Her eyes shine when he presents the ring, affirming his choice from the Solitaire 1895 selection of yellow gold, diamond-pavé platinum and diamond-pavé yellow gold.

Royal Engagement
Mount Kenya safari. African wildlife roam along the plains outside the cottage, from the fierce king of the jungle to the gentle gazelle. But that's not what's fraying his nerves. Instead, it's the platinum Exceptional Solitaire with a brilliant-cut 2.99 carat stone wrapped around her finger as he waits for her to wake up. Champagne breakfast at the ready, he notices her beginning to stir.

Honeymoon
Twilight ocean. It has been two years, six months and 25 days. Despite being the so-called, official end of the honeymoon period, he is still deep in the throes of his. He charts a yacht for the evening and they drift along the seas surrounding Hong Kong. The last rays of light dance on the water and catch the 1.50 carat brilliant-cut diamond of the Honeymoon diamond-pavé ring that he has just placed on her finger. It's smooth sailing from here.

How will you choose to propose? ■

Clockwise From Left
A celebrity engagement; Alex Lam serenades the exclusive crowd; a tea party with a sweet tooth; Cartier's Bridal Collection; The Set for You by Cartier collection; Honeymoon diamond pavé, Exceptional Solitaire, Solitaire 1895 platinum

From Top
Michelle Chen lights up the Cartier Destinée launch party; Cartier Destinée engagement ring